

LAST MAN STANDING - 2023/24 - GAME 5 - ROUND 6 11th-13th May

34 players are still standing for Round 6. Six different teams have been picked in this round - two of them in the same game, so we are guaranteed to lose at least one player.

On Saturday, in the lunchtime game, Fulham entertained Manchester City at Craven Cottage - Andy Burns was expecting a City win and goes through after a 4-0 win. In the 3pm games, Everton hosted Sheffield United at Goodison Park - 16 players were hoping the Blues would bow out with a final home win of the season and a 1-0 win was enough to see them through. Tottenham welcomed Burnley to the Tottenham stadium - 11 players had picked Spurs to help Burnley on their way back to the Championship, despite an early scare, they go through after a 2-1 win. West Ham faced Luton at the London stadium - Dave Brown, Dave Phillips and Paul Hallett were hoping that David Moyes had a happy farewell to his home crowd but Craig Milton was hoping that the Hatters gave themselves something to play for in their final game next weekend but it was Craig who dropped out after a 3-1 win for the Hammers. In the evening game, Nottingham Forest played Chelsea at the City Ground - Chris Mowles and Kenny Rogers had picked the Londoners and go through after a 3-2 win.

Just the one player dropped out, leaving 33 players still standing for the final round. The rules state that the prize pot will be equally shared but I don't think it was ever anticipated how many people would still be standing! I am going to contact the 33 players still standing to see if they want to take a share (should they make it through the final round) or if they would like this game to continue into next season for a more meaningful prize (will probably do that Tuesday when I have more time on my hands). Deadline for the final Round of the season is back to the usual 12pm on FRIDAY 17th May.
